Ringgold City and White Bluffs

UMATILLA, Ogn., June 28, 1866

EDITOR OREGONIAN

I notice a letter in the DAILY OREGONIAN of the 26th of June signed "N," and think that party and his friends must be interested in corner lots at White Bluffs City. He says there has been considerable talk lately in regard to Ringgold City and site being on the best route. He is right. There is considerable talk, and the talk is that the latter place is the point, and it is not all talk either for there is some work going on. I was there last Sunday, the 24th of June, and there were two buildings up besides several tents. There had then been sixteen lots taken and will be built on as soon as lumber can be obtained. Mr Whitney is going to send the schooner Mt Hood up with a load of lumber on her next trip. I have talked with a number of men who have traveled over that part of the country; they say the route from Ringgold is the best.
The town site is the best I have seen on the river, with an abundance of food adjoining—both bottom and bunch grass. There is also lime stone in the bluff back of the town site, a small portion of which Mr. G. Tucker burned and stacked into very nice lime. Mr. Tucker and Mr Gaston, of Salem, (a surveyor) passed over both roads to ascertain which was the best route and have located at Ringgold City; and Tucker & Co. have sent below for a mowing machine to cut hay there. Mr Tucker is now there at work. He has located a ferry at that point—it being on the most practicable and nearest route overland to the Dalles, and the Sound via the Yakima valley. The distance is only ten miles to the Yakima, which it is 12 miles from White Bluff City with a 22 mile drive without water, and has to intersect the road to Yakima from Ringgold City. There is a coulee running back from Ringgold City through which the road will pass which is an easy grade, destitute of sand and only twelve miles to water.
Messrs Tucker & Gaston report the White Bluff road to Crab Creek as lying through heavy sand and quite hilly, and it takes three days to reach the second crossing of Crab Creek, when it can be made from Ringgold in two days. The travel from either of those point should go east, and White Bluff City lies but little north of west from Ringgold City so, after passing Ringgold passengers and freight are carried in almost an opposite direction to their destination at Big Bend, Colville, or Blackfoot.
Mr. Martin, who has built one of the largest of the houses at White Bluffs, is here. He has taken a lot at Ringgold City and says he intends to move his house down. Mr. Quinn has six lots at White Bluffs City that cost him six hundred dollars. He has moved his house down and put it up at Ringgold City.
The advantages of the Ringgold road is that it connects with the Mullan and Colville road at Cow Creek, or with the White Bluffs road at the second crossing of Cow Creek—avoiding the sand and hills on the White Bluffs route. The distance from Ringgold to Cow Creek is 47 miles, from Ringgold to Cow Creek is 27 miles.
I am of the opinion that "N," and his friends will have to give up, for it is no use for three or four men to try to build a city when it has a rival with all the natural advantages and the great public in its favor. Yours, J. H. K.

DISTINGUISHED ARRIVALS.—Quite a sensation was produced in our harbor this morning by the arrival of the U. S. naval steamer Vanderbilt, which is to be flag-ship of the Pacific Squadron, accompanied by the double-turreted monitor Monadnock. Those vessels left Hampton Roads for this port on the 2d of November last, and have had an excellent passage, for particulars of which, and also for the list of their officers, see another column. This is the first cruise around the Horn ever made by a Monitor, and the manner in which the Monadnock behaved herself during the passage surprised the most sanguine expectations of her officers, and has proved that her seagoing qualities at least are equal to any emergency. She never had a tow-line attached to her during the entire trip and weathered the heaviest storms and rode the tallest waves equally well with her consort, the Vanderbilt.
A brief sketch of these two vessels may not be uninteresting to our readers:
The Monadnock was built at Boston during the second year of the war, and was the second monitor of her class that went into commission. She was present and did good service in the attack on Fort Fisher, and after the surrender of that Fort went to Charleston harbor, where she participated in many engagements and remained until Charleston was captured. She was then ordered to the James river, where she did good service until the surrender of Lee's army. She was then sent to Havana to look after the English-rebel ram Stonewall, and, after the surrender of that pirate to the Spanish authorities, the Monadnock returned to Hampton Roads. Thence she went to Philadelphia, where she was fitted for the cruise to the Pacific coast. She will remain in our harbor until Monday or Tuesday next, when she will be taken to Mare Island and put out of commission until her services may be required for the defense of this harbor. She will be open for visitors to-morrow, and it will well repay her citizens to give her an inspection. She is of entirely different construction from the Comanche, and will be a novelty to most people on this coast.
The Vanderbilt, as is generally known, was built shortly after the war commenced, by Cornelius Vanderbilt, the millionaire of New York, for the New York and Havre line. No expense was spared in her construction, and she was fitted up in the most gorgeous style. After the rebellion broke out, and the Government was in such pressing need of steamers, Commodore Vanderbilt generously made a present of her to the Government, and she was transformed into a first-class war steamer. During the rebellion she was employed a portion of the time as a transport for Union soldiers, and a still greater portion in cruising for rebel pirates. She is to be the flag-ship of the Pacific fleet, and will take the place of the Lancaster.
Among the Naval officers who came out in the Vanderbilt is Commodore Rodgers, who is to command the fleet on this coast. This veteran commander is known by reputation to most of our citizens. He has been in active service all through the war, having commanded the monitor Montauk at the first attack on Charleston under Admiral Dupont. With the same monitor he captured the rebel ram Atlanta in Ogeechee river, and participated in numerous engagements with rebel rams and land batteries on the Atlantic coast.—*S. F. The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 3, 1866.

Secretary Stanton.

The Copperheads do not admire Mr Stanton. As they profess the warmest admiration for the President it is not quite consistent for them to hate his Secretary with such vindictive bitterness Mr Stanton has never denounced them as furiously as Mr. Johnson has done he has never exhibited toward their rebel friends the vindictiveness—the almost ferocious animosity with which their "Moses" has regarded them. Why then should they quite adore the illustrious "tribune" and hold such rancorous feeling toward the Secretary of War? As instinct made the hero of Gadshill a coward so the detractors of Mr. Stanton are his haters on instinct. It is presumable that their instinct has led them to form a judgment equally as unerring, of Andrew Johnson as of the Secretary Hence their unbounded admiration of the President. It is doubtful whether Secretary Stanton could by any art ingratiate himself with Copperheads as Mr Johnson has done. They neither expect nor desire the Secretary's approbation But there is another wing of the "Johnson party" which professes the warmest regard for Mr Stanton Not long ago the "Johnson Club" of Washington, which represents the office-holders' or "lucrative" party, came down on the Secretary with a complimentary visit for the purpose of drawing from him an endorsement of the Johnson "policy" They got the speech, but did not obtain the endorsement they solicited Mr Stanton's views are altogether different from the telegraphic report of them which was received here some weeks since. If there is any devoted admirer of "my policy" who can derive comfort from the the perusal of the speech, he must be one who, like Mark Tapley, has the faculty of coming out strong and of being jolly under the most adverse circumstances. Mr. Stanton approves the Johnson policy as it was a year ago. He believes that "traitors should take a back seat in the work of restoration," and that Congress is the judge when the revolted States are sufficiently loyal to be entitled to representation. He advised the approval of the Freedmen's Bureau and Civil Rights bills when they were under discussion, and now practically recognizes the province of Congress in the whole matter of restoration, which Mr. Johnson quite ignores. We think Mr. Stanton succeeded in making himself plainly understood by the serenading party of office-holders, and that they will soon fail to hating him quite as cordially as the Copperheads have been doing ever since he doubt their Confederate friends so many damaging blows during the rebellion.

BAD ADVISERS.—Copperheads are advising the late rebels to reject all propositions from Congress to amend the Constitution, and tell them that "if they will stand for their rights they will get them." This means that if the Southern people will hold on to their dogmas about State rights, &c., the Copperheads, as soon as they get in power, will pull them back into the Union with all such "rights unimpaired" and start them going again with the right to secede at will, acknowledged and reduced to possession. These advisers are among the most fatal drawbacks to immediate restoration. We mistake the temper of the loyal people if they are not immovably determined on having some reasonable guarantee against repetitions of such wars as the one recently carried to a signal triumph. It has cost too much to allow of everything being reinstated upon the same footing whence the rebellion started. Before the war, one section maintained the right of secession; the other denied it. It was an element in the Government, of discord, weakness and division. Each side maintained its argument as plain and conclusive. While this was so, the question could not be deemed authoritatively settled one. The Southern States chose to submit it to the arbitrament of arms and lost. Having put it at stake, the winning side acquired the right to dictate the terms upon which the Government and the States should go on in future. Had the rebellion succeeded, this is the view of the matter which the Confederate Government would have taken—and rightly too—in the settlement of the relations to be newly assumed between the two Governments.

We are decidedly of the opinion, from all the testimony that we have seen, that at the surrender of the rebel armies and for months after, the rebels themselves took this view of the case, and gave up the principle of secession as a right, as lost. We believe that then the most of them were willing to give reasonable and sufficient guarantees against the resumption at any time of the attempt, by force. They looked upon this as something natural to be asked and natural to be given. They expected at all events to be under the necessity of yielding up the right to hold slaves, a considerable share of state rights—the idea of the paramount sovereignty of the States—and altogether, the idea of secession as a right. We believe that they surrendered and "accepted the situation," with a full appreciation of such a necessity.

We are satisfied from all that has occurred that but for the pernicious advice of Northern Copperheads, the Southern people would have went straight forward with that expectation, and would have readily accepted terms by far more rigorous than those now pending before the States. The result of Copperhead advice has simply been to awaken hopes of eventually not only gaining the control of the government but of being able to gain through politics all they had lost through war—the full recognition of the idea of paramount State sovereignty and with that the right of secession. Inspired with this hope, it is not to be wondered at that in many sections of the South the people have become turbulent, insolent and defiant toward the Union Government, that the declaration is almost every day made by leading and representative men that the South has not changed its views and that it looks upon the war as having settled nothing but the fact of a lack of power to achieve what the South still claims as a right—independence.

But the men of the South who now take this view of the matter, would do well to remember how awfully they were deceived when they went to war, and by these same Copperhead advisers. They may rest assured that the loyal men of the North who preserved the Union through war, are just as inflexible now as then, in the determination to place the Government above the power of conspirators to destroy it The less advice they take from Northern Copperheads, the better for all concerned

The Chicago Times says "the conservative element of this country would unanimously sustain the President should he to-day re-instate the Southern States in their Congressional seats by military force." Undoubtedly true. There has been no time within the last five years when this "conservative element" would not have been delighted to have seen the Congress of the United States driven by "military force" out of Washington, and the Congress of the "Confederacy" established there. Extraordinary efforts have been frequently made by Lee, the "conservative" leader, to dispossess Congress of the Capital, so that the "representatives of the Southern States" might sit in "Congressional seats" at Washington and impose their own terms upon the conquered people of the North. It would have been quite as well for him to have succeeded in that ambitious little project, as for us now to admit these rebel Congressmen, Generals and Cabinet officers into the national legislature to accomplish by "guile and fraud what force effected not."

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

DATES TO JUNE 30.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON June 30.—The Senate passed the following important bills, namely

Sec 2 That any 1 or more persons may be organized, or authorized to be organized, under the laws of any State of this Union, shall have the right to contract maintain and operate lines of telegraph through and over any portion of the public lands of the United States, and along any military roads or routes of the United States which have been or may hereafter be declared such by act of congress and over, under or along any navigable streams and waters of the United States Provided That such lines of telegraph shall be constructed and maintained so as not to obstruct the navigation of such streams or the highways crossed by the same, and any violation of any lawful regulation as to the use of such lines of telegraph which may be established by the proper authority in pursuance of this act, shall be sufficient cause for the forfeiture of the franchise hereby granted to the person or persons violating the same, and such lines of telegraph may be built across the navigable waters and over the military roads of the United States, with the necessary stop timbers and other materials for the same, and such material as may be necessary for the construction and repair of the same may be used without let or hindrance, and all persons and corporations shall have the right to the use of such telegraph lines for the transmission of their messages without discrimination in favor of the United States, subject to such regulations as may be established by the Postmaster General for the government of the same, and the charges for the transmission of messages over the lines of telegraph which may be built as aforesaid by the United States, shall not exceed fifty cents for the first ten words and five cents for each additional ten words, and the United States shall have the right to connect with any telegraph lines constructed under the provisions of this act, and to use the same on the terms prescribed by the Postmaster General, but nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the rights of the State of Texas, or any of the States lately in rebellion, to connect with any telegraph lines constructed under the provisions of this act, and to use the same on the terms prescribed by the Postmaster General

Sec 3 That the rights and privileges hereby granted shall not be transferred by any company acting under this law to any other company, corporation association or person Provided however, that the United States may at any time after the expiration of five years from the date of the passage of this act, for postal, military or other purposes, purchase all telegraph lines, property and effects and all rights of way, or compulsory grants appertaining thereto, as may be ascertained by five competent disinterested persons, two of whom shall be selected by the Postmaster General, two by the company interested, and one by those previously selected

Sec 4 That before any telegraph company shall have the power or privileges contained by this act, such company shall file their acceptance with the Postmaster General of the restrictions and obligations.

The yeas were as follows

Yeas—Anthony, Brown, Cameron, Cragin, Edmonds, Fessenden, Foster, Harris, Howe, Kirkwood, Pomeroy, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Wade and Williams—16

Nays—Buckalew, Clark, Conness, Doolittle, Guthrie, Hendricks, Howard, Morgan, Nye, Sumner, Vanwinkle Wilcox and Wilson—11

During the debate Mr. Nye said he could not see the object of such legislation. He believed the object of the measure was simply to get the present monopoly to purchase this franchisement He said he did not believe that the consent of Congress to put up telegraphic wires was necessary. The Supreme Court had held often that a corporation chartered in one State had a right to extend its functions to another State This National Telegraph Company would never build a line never intended to do it It was simply a speculation, and it would not be a becoming dignity for Congress to be a party to it.

Mr Conness said that if he understood Mr. Nye aright, it was he who maintained that it was no use in Congress trying to break down the telegraph monopoly, as any other line would be bought up as soon as chartered

Mr Nye—The effect of this and all such bills would be to increase the cost of telegraphing It would only raise the present monopoly and the cost of purchasing the other companies to the grand tariff

Mr Conness resumed the floor in advocacy of the bill One of the greatest difficulties under which the commercial people of the Pacific coast labored was the monopoly which controlled the telegraph between here and California Not long since the Supreme Court decided a third case of great importance to the Pacific coast, and the lines were taken possession of by the men belonging to the company, who succeeded in making immense speculation.

Mr Stewart advocated the bill The Government should encourage all parties desiring such public works Congress should grant no special privileges, but treat all liberally and fairly, with the good of the whole people in view

The Pacific Railroad—Colonel Paulding Released—The Tariff.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Gen. Dix, President of the Union Pacific Railroad, called upon President Johnson to-day to urge the veto of the Pacific Railroad bill, which allows the Kansas branch to build to Denver, and the California company to build eastward

Col Paulding, recently court-martialed for his connection with the Merchant's National Bank failure, has been relieved from arrest and reinstated in his duties as Chief Paymaster for the district

The House of Representatives has completed about one-third of the tariff bill and hopes begin to be entertained of an adjournment by the 15th of July.

STATE ITEMS.

Hon. Wilson Bowlby is to deliver an oration on the 4th, in Clackamas county, near the residence of William Elliott. A portion of the Anthem band has been engaged for the occasion.

The State Journal says the late officers of Lane county had managed the affairs of the county so well as to turn over $3,000 in the treasury and the county out of debt

The Albany Journal says the Copperheads of Long Tom (the Dixie of the county) fired one hundred guns in honor of the election of Israelnar as Governor That was vain glorying.

Running foot ing race will take place over the Albany race-course on the 4th.

The Journal says the Copperheads of Linn county are privately circulating a petition for the removal of Hon. Bullard, of Idaho, on the ground that he took no active interest in the election of the Union ticket.

No clue to the mystery of the disappearance of Mr Isaac Steenbach, at Albany, has been discovered His brother, Mr Steenbach, offers a reward of $200 for the recovery of the body

Watson that John Kennady, of Marion county was indicted under our statutes last week at Salem, for an attempt to intimidate a voter at the recent election We have not heard from the trial

BUTLER AGAIN.—This infamous old lecher, we hear, is again delivering "lectures" up the valley The wonder is that decent people will tolerate his presence in any community. His villainy has been made known all over the State, so there is no occasion for anybody to be deceived as to his real character. He should be shunned as the plague, and no more admitted into a respectable family than he would be if he came appearing what he really is—a devil incarnate

GEN. JOHN A LOGAN The Shawneetown Mercury says it has direct and positive information that Gen John A. Logan sides with Congress against the policy of the President.

It is well enough to state that we also have similar information, and from the General himself. Among the rising men of the State Logan now stands in the first ranks, and the people of Illinois will take the first favorable opportunity of showing their appreciation of his valuable services—Quincy Whig and republican

The Marysville Cal Express, a vile Copperhead sheet has been sold at Sheriff's sale. If the Devil bought it he got a bargain. He won't be under the necessity of making any change in the editorial department.

The New York Herald wants the President to dismiss his Cabinet and appoint another "fresh from the people." It would be a deal more satisfactory if we could get a new President "fresh from the people," too.

THE NATIONAL HOLIDAY.—To-morrow being the anniversary of Independence, when it severed us from British rule and gave us birth as a nation, it will be celebrated by all parties in this city, and the neighboring towns, in a manner alike spirited and satisfactory. The programmes have appeared in our columns, to-day and yesterday, and presented in the following summary will show that the hearts of the people of this section are in the cause, and that they will not have a fitting observance.

MEETING OF N. F. 2 AND THE PRESS.

The committee of arrangements for the meeting of the new steam fire engine of Multnomah Engine Company No. 2, have completed their arrangements for that object, and couple the ceremonies with a celebration likely to do credit to their own patriotism and revive the patriotism of the great number of men. The various companies of the city have accepted invitations to participate with No. 2, and will appear in procession which will go some through with according to the programme, after which, in the evening, a grand ball will be given at Lappeus & Knowles' new hall. The First United States Cavalry Band of Fort Vancouver has been engaged for these ceremonies.

EXCURSION BY THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

The excursion given by Good Templars of this city and Vancouver is one of the fine features of the day. Hon. J. F. Caples will deliver an oration. There are three lodges of the order in Portland, and they are in a flourishing condition. The order is rapidly growing throughout the State, and being an instrumentality for good it cannot be too highly appreciated.

FAIR AND SUPPER.

The ladies of the M. E. Church of Vancouver will hold a fair and strawberry festival at that place in the evening.

EXCURSION OF THE PANSIE TROUP.

The day will be celebrated independent of that proposed by the Good Templars at Vancouver. Hon. Columbia Lancaster will deliver an oration. The steamer Shamokin will make a special excursion on that account, leaving Portland at 9 o'clock, returning in the evening.

CELEBRATION AT MILWAUKIE.

The Washington Guard, Capt. Mills, will leave Portland on their swing of the Fourth, and participate in the celebration at Oregon City, which is to come off in regular old-fashioned style. Hon. E. D. Shattuck of this city will deliver an oration. The steamer Alert will make a special trip in the evening, for the accommodation of those who may wish to attend the party in the evening, leaving here at 7½ o'clock P. M., returning the following morning at 5 A. M.

CELEBRATION AT CENTERVILLE.

The people of Washington county will celebrate at Centerville, where Judge Smith of Portland, will deliver an oration.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The funny part of the day's proceeding will occur in the evening, at this city, and consist of a celebration by the order styled the "Honorable Ithuriel Pettibone." What they are, or who they are does not appear, but the programme, printed and posted throughout the city, shows it to be phunny in the extreme.

THE MAILS.—The contract for carrying the United States mails between Portland and Dalles city, leaving here at 5 o'clock A. M., tri-weekly, and arriving at Dalles at 10 o'clock P. M., tri-weekly, consuming two days and five hours in the transit, has been awarded to the O. S. N. Company. The company have heretofore carried the mail gratuitously as the people want it should be carried, but the treatment they have received at the hands of the Department entitles them to carry the mail as the Postmaster General directs. There is a species of humbugging exhibited in letting contracts on the Pacific coast, which ought not to be tolerated. Postmaster General Dennison may be a very nice man, but he cannot subserve the wishes of this community by listening to contractors who disregard the interest of our State. The mail will be carried according to the schedule time, and if there is not some howling, more or less, on account of it, it will be surprising to Ben Holliday. The mail to Astoria will be carried twice a week, and to Monticello the same as heretofore, except that it leaves at Monticello the mail two days longer than is necessary.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUSTICE—Monday, July 9, 1866.—The Grand Jury was formed with the following persons—A. Lawrence Lovejoy, Foreman; Thomas Dealy, Henry Owens, Ezra S. Johns, Edward Barton, E. V. Short, Stephen Coffin, E. B. Mercer, R. J. Ladd, Felix Families, Seth Lewelling, Lorenzo Frost, John K. De Lashmutt, H. A. Davis, Joseph Engalls, W. S. Warren, C. S. Silvers, Wilcoxell Simmons —W. R. Wills, on motion of J. H. Mitchell, was admitted to the bar.—United States vs. Henry Swift. Indictments for violation of the Internal Revenue law. Defendant brought in on a bench warrant, arraigned, and W. P. Trimble appointed by the Court as counsel; had until to-morrow morning to plead.....Mansfield vs. steamship Oregon; set for trial this morning.....The United States Court room is now well and nice. No further punishment should be necessary than to be tried in it, the weather, very near the sun, low ceiling and close ventilation.

SHIPPING VIA CHICO.—Mr. George Click lately purchased a stock of stoves and tin ware at San Francisco, for the establishment at Boise City, and through the representations of interested parties shipped by way of the Sacramento and Chico. The stock aggregated 50,000 pounds, and to get it started from the Sacramento river Mr. Click was obliged to purchase teams on his own account, which was done, and three weeks ago they left Chico. On the same day Mr. Click left Chico by stage and passed through Portland two weeks ago for Boise City, where he now, very probably anxiously awaiting the arrival of his purchases.

How IS IT.—We wish to put a direct question to the San Francisco Bulletin, Flag and Alta, and the Sacramento Bee. Just tell us if it is a fair proceeding to extract entire articles from the OREGONIAN.—without a mark of credit—or, if credit be given, to place it to some paper which never published the article? We have quite frequently, of late, read in the Flag, Alta and Bee, news articles published originally in this paper, which they have credited to some other. We have nothing to say if this is done occasionally, but we dislike for them to make a business of accumulating such items at the expense of this paper. The Bulletin has followed that style for about four years; but we thought we had reason to expect better things of the Alta, Flag and Bee. How is it?

PATENT SALMON IN TINS.—A number of gentlemen who have formerly carried on the business of preserving salmon fresh, in California, have establishes at Oak Point, for a like purpose, and are now engaged in this branch of trade, which is very likely to become an important item. Salmon are put up in tin cans and are warranted to keep fresh. The persons so engaged think they will be able to catch and preserve enough salmon at Oak Point to supply the entire Pacific coast. This is a good enterprise, and we wish the gentlemen who have undertaken it, abundant success.

THE PATENT SHACKEL.—Mr. J. C. Gardner, Warden of the State Penitentiary at Salem, has received his patent for the new shackel invented by him for keeping convicts. We have before described this invention, which is now in practical use at Salem, where, under the circumstances, it is very efficient. A friend writes us that Mr. Gardner is using forty of these shackels, and the effect is great. No matter what the character of the convict is, the patent shackel settles the question of escape with him.

PERSONAL.—The Public School at Astoria commenced on Monday last after a vacation of ten weeks, under the charge of Prof. E. G. Adams, formerly a teacher in a select school in this city. He is a very worthy gentleman, and we are informed has superior abilities, but having taken an active part in the late crusade against rebels, both on the battle field, and on the stump in this county, during the canvass of May last, he was proscribed by copperheads and forced to give up his school here for want of patronage. We hope Capt. Adams will live long and prosper as he deserves.

DONATION.—The Portland Library Association have recently received another donation of valuable books, for the shelves of the library room, being nearly a full set of the theological writings of Emanuel Swedenborg. The books, 22 Vols. in all, were donated by Dr. Jackson, of this county, and presented by Dr. Rigsbee, of this city. Mr. R. R. Johns has also presented the library with a fac-simile of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, and recently a donation of $100 in cash was accepted from Hon. H. W. Corbett. We are glad to see these evidences of appreciation.

COUNTY COURT.—P. A. MARQUAM, Judge—Monday July 9, 1866.—The Commissioners elect of the Court, Messrs. J. P. O. Lownsdale and Hans Hansen, were present, and the official bonds of Jacob Stiefel, Sheriff, H. C. Coulson, Clerk; Dr. J. A. Hoffman, Coroner; John Dolan, Assessor, and C. W. Burrage, Surveyor, were approved.....The sale of lots 1 and 2, in block 141, city of Portland, reported by H. S. Wiley, administrator of the estate of Daniel McKinney, deceased, was confirmed.

FIRST UNITARIAN SOCIETY.—The members of the First Unitarian Society of Portland, met on Saturday evening last and elected the following trustees: R. R. Thompson, Ira Goodnough, E. D. Shattuck, Thomas Frazer, C. V. Burrage, Richard White, J. W. Cook, J. M. Gilman, W. F. Wilcox.

TYCHONSTICAL.—The observations of Master Benson for the week past, show that we have experienced a few warm days. The weather yesterday was the warmest of the season, the thermometer measuring 99° at 1 o'clock, which was 2° warmer than at 12 M.

DISAPPROVED.—The action of the Territorial Assembly at Olympia last winter, in wiping Skamania county from the map of Uncle Sam's possessions, to benefit Clarke county in the matter of a few dollars and cents, has been disapproved by acts of Congress—and Skamania "still lives."

WRECKED.—A craft known as the Small Boat, owned in Portland, was beached a short distance above the city, last night. She was under command of Captain John Thompson, and sprung a leak. Three passengers were on board, Mr F. A. Clark, J. Phillippi and Thomas Bacon, but all hands were saved.

THANKS.—Wm. Barlow, Esq., of Oregon City, is a man after our own heart, in whose memory, if we shall survive him, we intend to erect a costly monument. He sent us yesterday, from Canemah, a box of elegant strawberries.

DEPUTY CLERK.—Mr Edward Barlow, who has filled the deputy clerkship for Multnomah county for some considerable length of time, with credit and satisfaction was yesterday reappointed by Mr H. C. Coulson, County Clerk elect.

BOOKS, PAPERS, ETC.—Barrett has placed upon our table a large pile of valuable Eastern papers, including weeklies, illustrated magazines, and others. The Irish People, Irish American, Wilkes' Spirit, Waverly, Ledger, Sclect, American, etc., may all be found at Barrett's to-day.

DEATH OF MR. CAHN.—Mr Lewis Cahn, formerly of this city, died at San Francisco a few days since. The flags of this city were displayed at half mast yesterday in consequence.

REAL ESTATE.—The fine residence of Col. Dennison, corner of Third and Stark streets, will be sold by Mr. A. B. Richardson at auction to-day.

Railroads East from the Columbia River.

Two lines of railroad are projected to have their beginning at some point on the Columbia river east of the Cascade mountains, and to continue toward the Mississippi, the one by way of Salt Lake, and the other by a more northerly route through Idaho, Montana and Dakota. We say projected. Enough as all know, nothing more has yet been done for either than to talk of the routes and to endeavor to enlist the attention of capitalists and commercial men in them. A bill has recently been introduced in the Senate by Mr. Williams authorizing a grant of lands by Congress to aid in the construction of the Salt Lake branch; but we are not yet informed what fate it has met with. The Northern Pacific Railroad Bill was defeated not long ago in the House through the influence of the curse of lobbyism which of these times makes itself powerfully felt in all legislation, State and National. A grant of lands for the Northern road would lead to the accomplishment of some results, as the lands on that route are in considerable part quite fertile and capable of sustaining a large population independent of the mines. On the Salt Lake route there is less good land, and consequently less aid will be furnished by a grant on that line than could be obtained from a similar donation for the Northern road. Both these enterprises are of important concern to Oregon. In the construction of the Northern road, Chicago, Milwaukie, Buffalo, Boston and other Northern cities will be deeply interested; in the Salt Lake branch they will naturally feel smaller concern. If work on these roads, or either of them, is to begin on the Columbia river and advanced toward the East—that is to say, if it is to begin soon capital will have to be obtained from elsewhere to give it a start. The road as fast as completed, would be brought into immediate and profitable use, gradually diminishing the distance now performed by the more laborious modes of transportation, until the whole was finished. As soon as it is demonstrated that the Northern road is to be built from the Mississippi river to the gold regions of Montana, Oregon may begin to be encouraged by the hope that it will be pushed through to the navigable waters of the Columbia.

FORTRESS MONROE AND ITS PROJECTOR.—Just before the capitulation of Ulm, Napoleon sent Captain Bernard, a young officer of engineers, on an important reconnoitering expedition. With great skill and intrepidity he prosecuted his mission, advancing almost to Vienna. On his return, Napoleon personally examined him, and was much pleased with his answers. Among other things he remarked that it would be of great advantage to direct the army upon Vienna, passing by the fortified places, and that once master of the capital, the Emperor might dictate laws for the whole Austrian monarchy. This was taking too great a liberty. Napoleon severely replied, "You are very presumptuous! A young officer to pretend to trace out a campaign for me! Go and await my orders." So soon as the young man had retired, Napoleon turned to General and said, "There is a man of merit; he has observed correctly; I shall not expose him to the risk of being shot; I shall have occasion for him by and by." This young man finally become an aid to Napoleon, and one of the most distinguished engineers in the world. It was he who planned Fortress Monroe at Old Point Comfort. Through the influence of Mr. Gallatin, Bernard was appointed at the head of the Board of Commissioners on Sea Coast Defences, and with him were associated Commodores Lewis Warrington and Jesse D. Elliott, and General Joseph G. Swift; Colonel W. K. Armstead, and Major W. McRee, of the Corps of Engineers. Fresh from the grand army of Napoleon, General Bernard had the most extravagant idea of military works, and planned his fortifications to be garrisoned, not by hundreds and thousands, but by tens and hundreds of thousands. He had a notion that this country, like that of his native country, depended in a great measure upon the impregnability and capacity of her lines of fortifications. He had not yet learned that the true strength of a land of liberty lies in the stout hearts and strong arms of her brave yeomanry. Under these circumstances was old Fortress Monroe planned and constructed, with her massive strength and enormous proportions.

A MISTAKEN COURSE.—The panic-stricken rebels who, believing that treason would be made odious died a year ago across the Rio Grande or betook themselves in open boats to Havana, committed an error. Woe-begone and poverty-stricken, the most of them have wandered hither and thither in foreign lands, while their equally guilty companions who remained at home have become reconstructed and reclothed with power and authority. While Toombs, Cobb, Early, Magruder and many others are in unhappy exile, casting wistful and longing looks upon the land of their nativity; the Wises, Humphreys, Hamptons and Semmeses are running round through the country at pleasure, delivering defiant, self-laudatory speeches, issuing doubtful Gubernatorial proclamations, writing insulting letters to Union Generals, or calling at the White House for their pardon papers, which are to be had for the simple asking. With them, indeed, "everything is lovely," in contrast to the condition of their more frightened comrades, who, unable to find rest for the soles of their feet on Mexican soil, have again started forth on their travels.

CROP PROSPECTS.—Commissioner Newton states, in his monthly agricultural report for April, just issued, that owing to the backwardness of the season it is impossible to pronounce intelligibly upon the condition of growing crops. The accounts received from wheat, he however says, are very discouraging, indicating a short crop over all the country. He advises our farmers to give increased attention to the raising of horses and cattle, inasmuch as the great scarcity of all live stock at the South will insure profitable prices for a long time to come.

A FAVORABLE NOTORIETY.—The good reputation and extended use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches" for Coughs, Colds and Throat Diseases has caused the Troches to be extensively imitated. Obtain only the genuine "Brown's Bronchial Troches," and do not be influenced by those who make more profit by selling worthless imitations.

Obituary.

Richard Hoyt, the subject of this sketch, was born in the State of New Hampshire on the 22d day of September, 1788. His forefathers were with the earliest settlers of the State, settling there about the latter part of the 17th century. His grandfather fought in the old war against the French and Indians, and was supposed to have been killed by an Indian while on his way home from the war, his body was never found. His father fought in the Revolutionary war, and carried the colors of the New Hampshire volunteers at the battle of Bunker Hill. The subject of this sketch was himself a soldier in the last war with England.

Mr Hoyt embraced Christianity 40 years ago, and from that time until his death he never failed to reprove sin and speak a word for his Divine Master, no matter what the situation or place. He was one of the first movers in the temperance reform, and an early and bitter opponent of Slavery, on which subject he boldly spoke at all times. He was what we called a gentleman of the old school. His sectarian theories were rigid and strict as practiced by our puritan fathers.

Three sons and a daughter came to this coast at an early day, leaving their father in the east with the only remaining son. The old gentleman expressed a wish to come to this coast to see his children again before he left this world. While here, as in the east, he devoted his time and feeble strength to the service of the Lord by distributing tracts and religious reading to all who would accept of them from his hand. He died July 1st, 1866 aged nearly 78 years. His funeral sermon was preached by Rev. H. S. Caffrey yesterday, and his remains were followed to the grave by his two sons, who reside in this city, and a large number of friends.

"What tho' the body return to dust, there is that which cannot die:
That which defies destruction, that which mocks decay,
A spirit that delight in virtue.

All Persons should test the merits of DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. While it is highly palatable as a beverage, it is unequalled as a tonic and invigorator. In the pursuit of fortune at the mines, many persons are exposed to the attacks of complaints of the digestive organs, and of various kinds of fever. It is the very article that has so long been in demand at the mines. Its daily use will restore the tone of a deranged stomach, impart fresh vitality to the digestive functions, and cheer the spirits. Yet the Bitters is the safest of all stimulants. Let the miner who is exposed to hot and dry, wet and cold, be certain to obtain a supply of the genuine Hostetter Bitter, and he will find it a certain safeguard to health. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. jy20 HODGE, CALEF, & Co., 97, Front St.

An Hour with General Grant

We have given a brief telegraphic account of an interview of the editor of the Lewiston (Maine) Journal with General Grant. The following is the narrative in full:

WASHINGTON May 12.—We had the good fortune recently to meet General Grant at the studio of Matson's gifted artist, Simmons and spent an hour in conversation with the Lieutenant General while he was giving Simmons the benefit of a sitting. Everything coming from the General who led our armies to victory over rebellion is of interest to the public and particularly so at this time when his name is mentioned in connection with the next Presidency, we propose to give our readers a brief resume of Grant's conversation.

The General, who was dressed in a plain black civilian suit, had hardly removed his hat from his head before he took a cigar from his pocket, lighted it and began to puff out wreaths of smoke. "I am breaking off from smoking," remarked Grant. "When I was in the field I smoked eighteen or twenty cigars a day but now I smoke only nine or ten." Seating himself and turning toward the clay model of himself which the artist was building up, Grant remarked: "If you had been at Vicksburg when we were before that city, you would not have wanted for mud." This naturally opened the way to a conversation on the events of the war, which we improved.

Referring to the long struggle for possession of Vicksburg, Grant said he felt sure of that city the moment he had effected a landing below. "I then clearly saw every step," he remarked, "but I didn't think the rebels would be such fools as to shut up thirty thousand troops there for me to capture." Grant seemed to regard the series of battles which relieved Chattanooga and put that importance strategic point securely in our possession, as one of the most satisfactory of his achievements in a purely military point of view. Pittsburg Landing he regarded as an important victory and, although he blamed the officers commanding our outposts for their negligence in allowing a surprise yet he claimed that the battle did very much to dampen the ardor and break down the arrogance of the rebels.

GENERAL GRANT ON SWINTON'S HISTORY.

The conversation turned to the Virginia campaign of 1864 and 1865. "I notice," remarked General Grant, "that Swinton has published a history of the campaigns in the Old Dominion, in which he takes the ground that I gained nothing, but, on the contrary, lost many valuable lives uselessly by moving my army from the Rapidan direct towards Richmond, rather than by taking it around by water to the Peninsula, as McClellan did." "This," observed the General, "is a revival of the old theory (referring to the McClellan policy) of subduing the rebellion by peace measures. A half million troops might have been kept within sight of Washington till doomsday, and the rebellion would have flourished more and more vigorously day by day. Fighting, hard knocks, only could accomplish the work. The rebellion must be overcome, if overcome at all, by force—its resources destroyed—its fighting material obliterated, before peace could be obtained.

"Now," remarked the General, as he took another puff at his cigar, "will anybody tell me what could be gained by moving my army by water a hundred miles further from my base than was necessary to meet the foe against which all my blows must be directed? And then by marching overland I could keep my whole force together and protect Washington at the same time whereas, had I moved by water to the Peninsula before Lee's army had been crippled, I should have been obliged to leave a large force behind to guard against raids on Washington. "It seems to me" added the General, "to be the simplest military truism to fight an enemy as near as possible to our base."

THE BATTLES OF THE WILDERNESS.

In response to an allusion to the charge that little was accomplished by the tremendous loss of life from the Wilderness to the James, Grant remarked that he had little patience with those grumblers who expected that the rebellion could be put down without the loss of life. The problem given was to destroy the fighting material of the Confederacy, and that could only be done by a sacrifice of life on our side. It was the constant pounding which we gave Lee's army from the Rapidan to the James that made possible the victories of April, 1865. In all the battles of 1864, except Cold Harbor, our loss was inferior to that of the enemy; and great as were those losses, yet they were not only necessary to secure the final result, but even less than they would have been by disease had we resorted to the Chickahominy warfare, and the consequent prolongation of the war.

THE VIRGINIA FAILURES.

"There were but two failures in the Virginia campaign of '64 which ought to have been successes," said Grant, "and those were the failure to capture Petersburg when we crossed the James, and afterwards at the mine explosion. Blunders, and especially a failure to move with sufficient promptitude, lost us those two opportunities which now it is clear might both have been successes. But," added Grant, "it was all for the best that we failed in those two instances, for had we succeeded at either time, Lee would have at once been obliged to abandon Richmond, and would have been able to secure a safe retreat into the interior of the South, where he would have prolonged the contest for years. Our failure then, and the determination of the rebels to hold on to their Capital, gave us time to extend our left southward, to bring up Sherman from Georgia, and thereby made it impossible for Lee to escape."

THE COLLAPSE OF THE REBELLION.

In reply to a question as to whether he was not surprised at the suddenness of the collapse of the rebellion, Grant said that he was, although he had always supposed that when it did break down it would go all at once. "I thought, however," he remarked, "that it would hold out another season, and I am not sure," he added, "but that it would have been better for the country if it had. There were some parts of the country where our armies had never trod, particularly Texas, which needed to feel the blighting effects of war to bring their people to a realizing sense of the enormity of their crime and the necessity of a thorough repentance. I find," said he, "that those parts of the South which have not felt the war, and particularly those which have been within our lines and have therefore escaped the rebel conscription and taxes, are much less disposed to accept the situation in good faith than those portions which have been literally overrun with fire and sword."

TEMPER OF THE SOUTH.

Referring to the temper of the Southern people, he remarked that they are much less disposed now to bring themselves to the proper frame of mind than they were one year since. "A year ago," said he, "they were willing to do anything; now they regard themselves as masters of the situation. Some of the rebel Generals," he added, "are behaving nobly and doing all they can to induce the people to throw aside their old prejudices and to conform their course to the changed condition of things. Johnston and Dick Taylor, particularly, are exercising a good influence; but," he added, "Lee is behaving badly. He is conducting himself very differently from what I had reason, from what he said at the time of the surrender, to suppose he would. No man at the South is capable of exercising a tenth part of the influence for good that he is, but instead of using it, he is setting an example of forced acquiescence so grudging and pernicious in its effects as to be hardly realized.

"The men who were in the rebel armies," said Grant, "acquiesce in the result much better than those who staid at home. The women are particularly bitter against the Union and Union men. Of course," he added, "there is some bitterness of feeling among all classes; but I am satisfied it would soon die out if their leading men had not somehow got the idea that treason after all, was not very bad, and that the 'Southern cause, as they phrase it, will yet triumph, not in war, but in politics. In my judgment," said Grant, "the tone of certain men and certain papers in the North is such as to do incalculable mischief in making the late rebels believe that they are just as much entitled to rule as ever, and that if they will only stand by what they are pleased to call their 'rights,' they will have help from the North." This significantly added Grant, "is only playing over again the incipient stages of the rebellion." He was confident that the large majority of the Southern people would smother their resentments and become good citizens if the machine makers at the North (the Copperheads) would only let them alone. For himself, if he had the power, the first thing he would do would be to seize the New York News and kindred sheets, which are giving the South so dangerous an idea of their own position and "rights." "Dick Taylor" added Grant, "told me that the great body of the South would settle down quietly, and be satisfied with anything if it was not for this false idea of 'their rights,' and so called ill treatment fostered by such sheets."

TROOPS IN THE SOUTH.

"Troops," said General Grant, "must be kept at all the principal points in the South for some time to come. This will be necessary to repress the turbulence of a class of the South very dangerous to all well disposed persons, and also to protect the rights of the freedmen, who are looked upon with deep hatred by a very large proportion of the people. I am in favor, however," he added, "of not retaining our volunteers for that duty, because they very naturally think that they fulfilled their engagement one year since. Hence, whenever I have heard of any dissatisfaction in a volunteer regiment, I have at once ordered their discharge. I couldn't consent to the punishment for turbulence of brave men who had been through the war and who regarded themselves as being wrongfully held. I have given orders for the immediate discharge of all the white volunteers.

MEXICO.

Grant spoke in high terms of Sherman, Sheridan Howard and other Generals, and referred to our Mexican difficulties forcibly adding that he believed the French invasion of Mexico a part of the rebellion, and he should have been glad to have seen a less amount of our army sent there one year since. He would engage that Sheridan, with plenty of arms and two thousand American troops and a goodly number of American officers, would, with the aid of the Mexicans clean Maximilian out of Mexico in six months.

But we have already extended our account of this interesting interview too far, and must omit many other matters. Suffice it to say that we left General Grant more deeply impressed than ever before, even, of his great ability, his unflinching patriotism, and his thorough devotion to liberty and justice. We thank God that in this crisis such a man is at the head of our armies, and that, if duty and his country calls, he will be ready to take upon himself more responsible duties.

Secretary Stanton's Speech.

The following is the speech of Secretary Stanton delivered to a company who had called upon him at his residence in Washington, on the evening of the 23d of May

GENTLEMEN: On the afternoon of Thursday, the 17th of this month, I received a note from the Secretary of the National Union Johnson Club, telling me it was the design of the association to serenade the President and his Cabinet, and that I would be called upon at my residence. Immediately on the receipt of this note, a reply was sent to the Secretary expressing my thanks for the compliment and declining the honor of the serenade.

A similar compliment by the patriotic association, the Soldiers' and Sailors' League, had previously been declined. Two reasons induced my action. The last time a public speech was made from this spot, in answer to a serenade, was the night of Friday, the 14th day of April, 1865. At that moment, when we had been rejoicing at the downfall of the rebellion, one of its instruments was murdering Mr. Lincoln.

You will not think it strange that a complimentary occasion, brought with such associations, should not be coveted besides, at the head of a department, my public duties have been amply executive.

After four years of war the authority of the Federal Government was established throughout the whole territory of the United States at a sacrifice of over 300,000 lives of loyal soldiers and a cost of more than $3,000,000,000. Nearly every household in eighteen loyal States is mourning its loved ones. A tax which may last for generations is laid upon the food and raiment and necessities of every family, and the price of these daily necessities.

The twenty millions of inhabitants of the loyal States feel, and will long continue to feel what it cost to uphold their Government against rebellion. The office of President devolved upon Mr Johnson at the death of Mr. Lincoln on the 15th day of April, 1865.

Thirteen days before that time, Richmond the seat of the rebel Government, had been captured, and six days later the rebel Commander in-Chief, Robert E. Lee, vanquished—surrendered his army as prisoners of war to General Grant and the forces under his command. By these rapidly succeeding events the rebel Government was overthrown and the official authorities gave themselves up as prisoners of war.

The President's annual message to the present Congress thus clearly states the condition of the country, and the question thereby imposed upon him. I found the States suffering from the effects of a civil war. The expense of the General Government appeared to have exhausted itself, and the United States had received possession of their forts and their armies were in occupation of every State which had attempted to secede.

Whether the territory within the limits of these States should be held as conquered territory, under military authority emanating from the President as head of the army, was the first question that presented itself for discussion.

The Secretary then quoted from the President's message concerning the re opening of courts, post offices, and ports, and continued: By some it was thought just and expedient that the right of suffrage, in rebel States, should be secured in some form to the colored inhabitants of those States either as universal rule, or to those who are qualified by education or by actual service as soldiers who volunteered life for their Government.

My own mind inclined to this view, but after calm and full discussion, my judgment yielded to adverse arguments resting upon the practical difficulties to be encountered in such a measure, and to the President's conviction, that to prescribe the rule of suffrage was not within the legitimate scope of his power.

The plan of organization embodied in the proclamation to the people of North Carolina and in instructions to the Provisional Governor of that State, exhibit the system and principles prescribed by the President for the substitution of civil authority in place of universal military rule in insurrectionary States.

In this plan, two things presented by the proclamation and the President's instructions are worthy of special notice: First, that the organizing power is specifically and absolutely restored to the the people who are loyal to the United States and no others. This is in accordance with the views often declared by Mr. Johnson from the commencement of the rebellion and under the most impressive circumstances.

Secondly, the choice of delegates was not only limited to the loyal people and no others, but constitutional guarantees were required in respect to emancipation of slavery. A sound reason for such guarantees in respect to the slave States, was given by the President in his message, namely: the necessity of evidence of security in the future maintenance of the Union.

Those views, expressed by the President in his message, received, and continue to receive, my cordial acquiescence and support. Who are loyal people, is a question that ought not to be difficult of decision. In thus distinctly recognizing the constitutional right of each House of Congress to judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members, the President has conformed to the plain letter of the Constitution, it being the function of each house to judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members.

The obligation is implied of taking testimony, weighing evidence and deciding the question of membership. That testimony has been taken on what evidence has been presented on the question to either branch of Congress, or what judgment to be given, is not known to me, nor have I the right of inquiry.

Besides the steps taken by the Executive to restore the constitutional relations of the States, in his annual message he called the attention of Congress to the necessity of insuring the security of the freedmen, reminding Congress that while he had no doubt that the General Government could not extend the elective franchise, it is equally clear that good faith requires security of freedmen in their liberty and their property, their right to labor and a right to claim a just return of their labor, and observing further that the country is in need of labor, and that the freedmen are in need of employment and protection.

In connection with this subject the President further remarks: slavery was essentially a monopoly of labor and as such blocked the States where it prevailed against the incoming of free industry. Slave labor was the property of the capitalist. A white man was excluded from employment, or had but the second best chances of finding it and the foreign emigrant turned away from the region where his condition would be so precarious, etc.

These views of the President in relation to the freedmen, received, and continue to receive my hearty concurrence. They have guided the actions of the War Department, and were substantially advocated in its annual report, in what I believe an honest desire to conform to them. A bill was passed by Congress regulating the Freedmen's Bureau, but the provisions of the bill did not meet the President's approval. He believed the power conferred upon him, and upon agents to be appointed by him, to be unwise and unconstitutional.

Concurring in the object of the bill, and regarding the power as temporary, and would be safe in his hands, I advised its approval but having been returned to Congress with the President's objections, and having failed the needful support, it is no longer a living measure nor the subject of debate or difference of opinion.

Another Congressional measure called the Civil Rights Bill, has been the subject of much. That bill, now a law, has for its object the security of civil rights in insurrectionary States.

It was well observed by the President, in his annual message, that peaceful emigration to and from that portion of the country, the Southern States, is one of the best means that can be thought of for the restoration of harmony. Its possible interference with such emigration was the only chief objection to military rule and by some it is thought that the influence of class legislation in favor of the slave holding monopoly heretofore existing in the Southern States, would be strongly excited to prevent peaceful emigration into those States and would exclude the laboring population of the North from that soil of exuberant fertility and friendly climate, that productive region embracing eight or nine States nearest the Gulf of Mexico.

Civil rights in those States should be vigilantly protected by Federal laws and Federal tribunals. Although the measures enacted by Congress for the purpose failed to receive the Executive sanction, yet having been adhered to by a two-thirds vote in each House, they have now passed into the statute book and ceased to be a subject of debate.

In my judgment every proper sentiment to the Union should be fostered and cherished, and for Congress to limit its own power by a constitutional amendment for the period of four years, might be deplorable in its results. To those who differ, I accord the same honesty and perhaps greater wisdom than I can claim for myself.

Having thus declared my views as they have heretofore been declared to those who had a right to know them, on the maternal questions that have lately arisen or are now pending, I trust that your purpose on this occasion is answered, and I shall be glad if these expressions may have a beneficial influence on the question, the right disposition whereof is a matter of solicitation to every patriotic man and is deeply important to the peace and tranquility of the people. Recognizing the constitutionality of co ordinate branches of the Government, the legislative, judicial and executive, and entertaining for each the respect which is due from every loyal citizen, they are entitled to and shall receive, according to my best judgment, the support which is required by that Constitution, which, after an unexampled conflict, has been upheld and sanctified by a Divine Providence, through the sacrifice of so much blood and treasure.

RUMORS ABOUT THE ADMISSION OF TENNESSEE, ARKANSAS AND COLORADO.—A Washington special dispatch of May 30th, to the N.Y. World has the following:

It appears that, at the Senatorial caucus, after having decided upon their plan of reconstruction it was suggested by some of the conservative Senators that as Tennessee had complied with all the requirements contained in the proposed amendments her Representatives be immediately admitted. After considerable discussion it was finally carried. Therefore, as soon as the proposed amendments have passed both Houses a joint resolution will be offered that, inasmuch as Tennessee has complied in advance with all the requirements contained in the amendment, her Senators and Representatives be admitted to their seats in Congress. It is understood that Arkansas will also be included in the resolutions, she being on a similar footing. It is also proposed at the same time, to admit Colorado over the President's veto, those Senators who originally opposed her admission having become convinced that it is better to have her admitted now.

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATTENDED this invaluable medicine in curing the most painful and distressing diseases to which the human frame is subject, has induced many unprincipled persons to attempt the manufacture of a spurious article, which they recommend to the doubting and unfortunate, in the hope of reaping a harvest from the credulity of the afflicted. Let it, therefore, be distinctly understood that the CONSTITUTION WATER is a purely vegetable preparation, and contains no mineral ingredients whatever. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above mentioned, and also of

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
THYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLOOR ALBUS,

And in every disease in any way connected with the Bladder or decay of the GENERATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, or anticipating family responsibilities, should take the CONSTITUTION WATER, which will restore the system to a healthy vigor.

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the lingering and exhausting sensation of an old or debilitated, nerveless and dispirited system, is alike overcome by this celebrated medicine. Be convinced that MEDICAL WONDER,

The weakening, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, his nerves with a firm step, his cheek, which was pale and sunken, is glowing with animal health, elastic spirits, becomes bright and active, and he goes forth regenerated, a modern of new vigor. This medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition in

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGURARY AND BURNING,
PAINFUL OR DIFFICULT URINATING,
CALCULOUS, GRAVEL,
BILIOUS DISORDERS, AND MUCOUS OR MILKY DISCHARGES ATTENDING URINATING.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and in many cases it is unfailing in its action. A single dose has been known to relieve in a short time. TRY IT in the following cases and you will never give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.
